Charter of the Varnell Foundation for the Sciences

Geneva, 1897

Article 1. A foundation is established under the name Varnell Foundation for the Sciences, with its seat in Geneva.

Article 2. Its purpose is to award research fellowships to young scientists and to keep a library open to its fellows.

Article 3. The foundation's property consists of the house, the library and the capital left by Henri Varnell.

Article 4. The foundation is run by a board of five members, who serve without pay.

Article 5. The board meets at least twice a year and keeps minutes of its decisions.